

Let's Talk. Call Me.

Is your mailbox stuffed to overflowing with recruitment materials? Instead of wading through a paper jungle, we invite you to pick up the phone and actually talk one-on-one with a colleague who made the decision to practice at Regional West Medical Center.

Raqeeb Haque, MD, joined Regional West Physician Clinic-Neurosurgery & Spine Center in 2014. Call his cell phone at 308.672.8140 at your convenience and get honest, straightforward answers to your questions.

Dr. Haque completed his undergraduate education at Harvard University in Cambridge, Ma., and earned a medical degree from The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, Baltimore, Md. He completed Neurological Surgery residency training at New York and Presbyterian Hospital, Columbia Campus, New York, NY, and a Minimally Invasive Spine fellowship at Northwestern University Medical Center, Chicago, Ill.

Why did he choose to relocate to western Nebraska?

This is a fantastic city – people welcomed me with open arms. When you're new to an area, it's a comfort to be welcomed in such a warm way.

The facilities at Regional West are impressive with quality providers and staff. Scottsbluff really is 'small town with big-city doctors.' Being able to work hard at something I love with people I enjoy is extremely rewarding. In fact, I'm in training for a triathlon right now with fellow co-workers and people I've met through my gym.

There are so many recreational activities around here, plus easy access to the nearby mountains of Colorado and the Denver airport. Visiting family and friends on the east coast is just a short flight away.
